More than one way to open the door

BWF leads with employers and organizations that can sponsor participants directly. BWF tuition support, direct payment, Texas Workforce Commission, and Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act pathways remain part of the complete tuition strategy.

Funding is confirmed before enrollment is final.

The four pathways

1. Sponsor payment	An employer or organization purchases training through an approved contract, purchase order, invoice, or tuition sponsorship agreement.
2. BWF tuition support	Eligible students may be reviewed for available support that can help close a remaining tuition balance after other funding is considered.
3. Texas workforce funding	Eligible students may pursue an approved Texas Workforce Commission or Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act pathway. Authorization is required.
4. Direct payment	A student may ask BWF about current tuition, payment expectations, program availability, and possible starts.

What each pathway requires

Pathway	Before funding is confirmed
Sponsor payment	A confirmed participant group, written scope, tuition proposal, approved payer, executed agreement, and payment terms.
BWF tuition support	A student review, available funds, eligibility, and a written award decision. Support is not guaranteed.
Texas workforce funding	Program eligibility, student eligibility, provider requirements, and authorization from the appropriate funding authority.
Direct payment	Current tuition, the applicable enrollment documents, payment terms, program availability, and an official start date.

What sponsor tuition may include

- Instruction for the approved program and schedule
- Student onboarding and orientation
- Online learning access when applicable
- Attendance and progress reporting included in the agreement
- Support and coordination defined in the proposal
- Materials only when expressly included in writing

What affects the final price

The approved program, student count, instructional hours, instructor needs, delivery location, technology, reporting, student support, equipment, and materials all affect the final written proposal.

Texas workforce pathways

Accepting eligible students through Texas Workforce Commission and Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act funding pathways is part of BWF's enrollment model. These pathways require the student and program to complete the applicable eligibility and authorization process. Approval time can vary.

No automatic funding

A website statement, information form, sponsor conversation, referral, application, or preliminary approval does not guarantee payment. BWF confirms the official tuition arrangement only after reviewing the program, payer, eligibility, written authorization, and available support.
